

UNSOLICITED LITERATURE

ISSUE II: RISE

oh hey, i didn't see you there

Unsolicited Literature is accepting submissions for our next issue.

The first issue was "Fall" of 2016, which we thought at the time was a reference to "Fall" the season.

Turns out, it was the verb "fall." So, the next issue is Rise.

We are looking for entries to be...

- 1) relevant to our current moment or modern day experience,
- 2) something only you could make,
- 3) subversions of conventions,
- 4) work that exposes or educates folks to new ideas, or
- 5) discusses the process of learning or dispersing information.

We accept...

essays, poems, fiction, lists, rants, comics, lyrics, visual art, memes, dramatic excerpts, prayers, incantations, secret codes, recipes, credit card numbers, your sister's facebook password, second hand drama, very specific beef, screenshots, tattoo designs, gripes, bruises, photographs, or acronyms.

Send up to 10 pieces to unsolicitedliterature@gmail.com for consideration.

Selected contributors will receive 3 handmade copies of the print publication and a digital copy of the issue.
